

This is absolutely ridiculous. The services that XM provides are a huge asset to its subscribers. It would be a typical government move, i.e waste of time and tax dollars, to limit the services that they can provide. Stick with limiting public services, not services that are paid for by willing subscribers.